Maggiano’s Oak Brook • 240 Oak Brook Center Mall • Oak Brook, IL

7:30-8:00 am Registration & Hot Buffet Breakfast

8:00-9:30 am Program

Things are changing at OSHA. Procedures are being revised for assessing penalties. The average fine for a serious violation is increasing to $3,000-$4,000 each. Employers with a history of serious OSHA violations and repeat offenses will be subject to more frequent inspections, mandatory follow-up inspections and inspections at other worksites where similar hazards and deficiencies may be present. In addition, the time period the agency can look back for considering an employer’s history of violations has been increased to five years. The chances of an inspection are increasing, and the consequences could be severe, including criminal charges. Owners, safety directors, project managers, estimators and key field personnel are urged to attend this workshop -- a valuable opportunity to network with others in the industry and to update your knowledge about OSHA Inspections and Citations, particularly

- Current OSHA enforcement trends;
- Preparing for OSHA investigations;
- Participating in OSHA inspections;
- Responding to OSHA citations and Negotiating penalties.
